Q: mod_rewrite for HTTP to HTTPS with internal pages I have mod_rewrite setup for a Magento site so that users can access it using (default). I don't want to use so I would prefer using I have a domain name, example.com and I've set it up in Magento with an SSL certificate. However, when I'm logged in, the Magento admin interface uses example.com, while my mobile app has HTTPS certificate, and uses for my API calls. In my Apache's httpd.conf, I have this: ServerName example.com RewriteEngine on Redirect 301 /magento/ RewriteCond %{HTTPS} off RewriteRule [L,R=301] ServerAdmin admin@example.com DocumentRoot /var/www/example.com/html/ ErrorLog /var/www/example.com/logs/error.log CustomLog /var/www/example.com/logs/access.log combined I have also tried the following, with no results: RewriteRule (.) [R=301,L] How can I use for logged-in users and for non-logged-in users? Thanks! A: You can either have the condition be in an HTTPS rewrite for the login area of the site, or you can add an additional HTTP rewrite inside the VirtualHost to redirect the rest of the site: ServerName example.com ServerAlias www.example.com RewriteEngine on RewriteCond %{HTTPS} off RewriteRule ^/(?!(magento/))(.)$ [R=301,L] ServerAdmin admin@example.com.

Q: How to make specific number variables in javascript? I am a beginner to javascript. I have a div that I want to increment each time a button is pressed. So if the number is already 1, I want to increment that number by a certain amount. I want it to show the number of increment like this: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5,.... This is the code for my function for the button: And this is the code for my function for the incrementing of the number: function play() { var num = parseInt(document.getElementById("num").value, 10); var num_increment = parseInt(5, 10); var num_plus = parseInt(num_increment, 10); document.getElementById("num").value = num + num_plus; } A: First off, you're not setting the number to 1, you're setting it to parseInt('1', 10). The second issue is that you're calling parseInt on the value attribute itself. You'd want to get the value of the input. Instead of parseInt(document.getElementById("num").value, 10) you should just be var num = parseInt(document.getElementById("num").value); which is the same as parseInt(document.getElementById("num").value, 10). Second, you're not actually assigning it to anything. You need to do something like var num = 1; This assigns num the number 1. Then you increment num, which should end up equal to num += 5; which will add 5 to num. This should get you up and running. There's still some problems with code quality, like naming your functions properly, but I'll leave that to you :) function play() { var num = parseInt(document.getElementById("num
